Offerings at Local Houses

War Hero on Goldwyn Stage. Lieut. Robert de Coedec, who won the Croix du Guerre and other symbols of valor in France, plays with Geraldine Fitzgerald in the Goldwyn picture, "The Woman and the Puppet," now at the Isis. Because he once attended Cambridge University and served as spy for the British government with the English army as interpreter at the beginning of the great war, Pegana, a fascinating young girl violinist, is the extra feature.

Many Dual Roles. Dual roles fall to the lot of each of three principal players in "The Cheat," the Second Classics, Inc., production in which May Allison stars and which was adapted by Louis Zellner from "Judah," the notable stage play by Henry Arthur Jones. The Cheat will be in continuous attraction at the Bijou Theater for a run of three days, beginning today. The story shows the activities of a chess master, a woman and a child.

May Allison plays the girl who through the influence of her associates, sees only the wrong side of life. A Fox Sunshine comedy and Sennick News are added.

"The Great Accident." Starring Tom Moore, this comes to the Colonial Theater today in its seven adaptation of Ben Ames Williams' story which created a sensation when it recently appeared in serial form.

The action takes place in a small Western town, Hardiston, at the time when the enforcement of the dry law was an issue in the mayoralty campaign.

Pretty Snow Scenes. Some scenes for moving pictures are about as obtainable as California as feed Martinis on the Sahara. Nevertheless, in J. Warren Kerrigan's latest Brunton feature, "No. 95," a snow scene in a desert town is the attraction at the Victor Theater, some of the most picturesque snow scenes ever photographed are shown.

"The Right of Way." In motion picture form, an adaptation of the famous novel by Frank G. Carpenter, which was originally written by Bert Lytell, will be shown at the Ocean Theater today.

Final Showing of "White Lies." "White Lies," the new production starring Gladys Brockwell, which opened at the Bijou, is a masterpiece of dramatic construction, this great play modernized from the famous novel by Charles Reade, after which the author's company exceptional scope for the display of dramatic ability. It is a wonderfully absorbing play.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

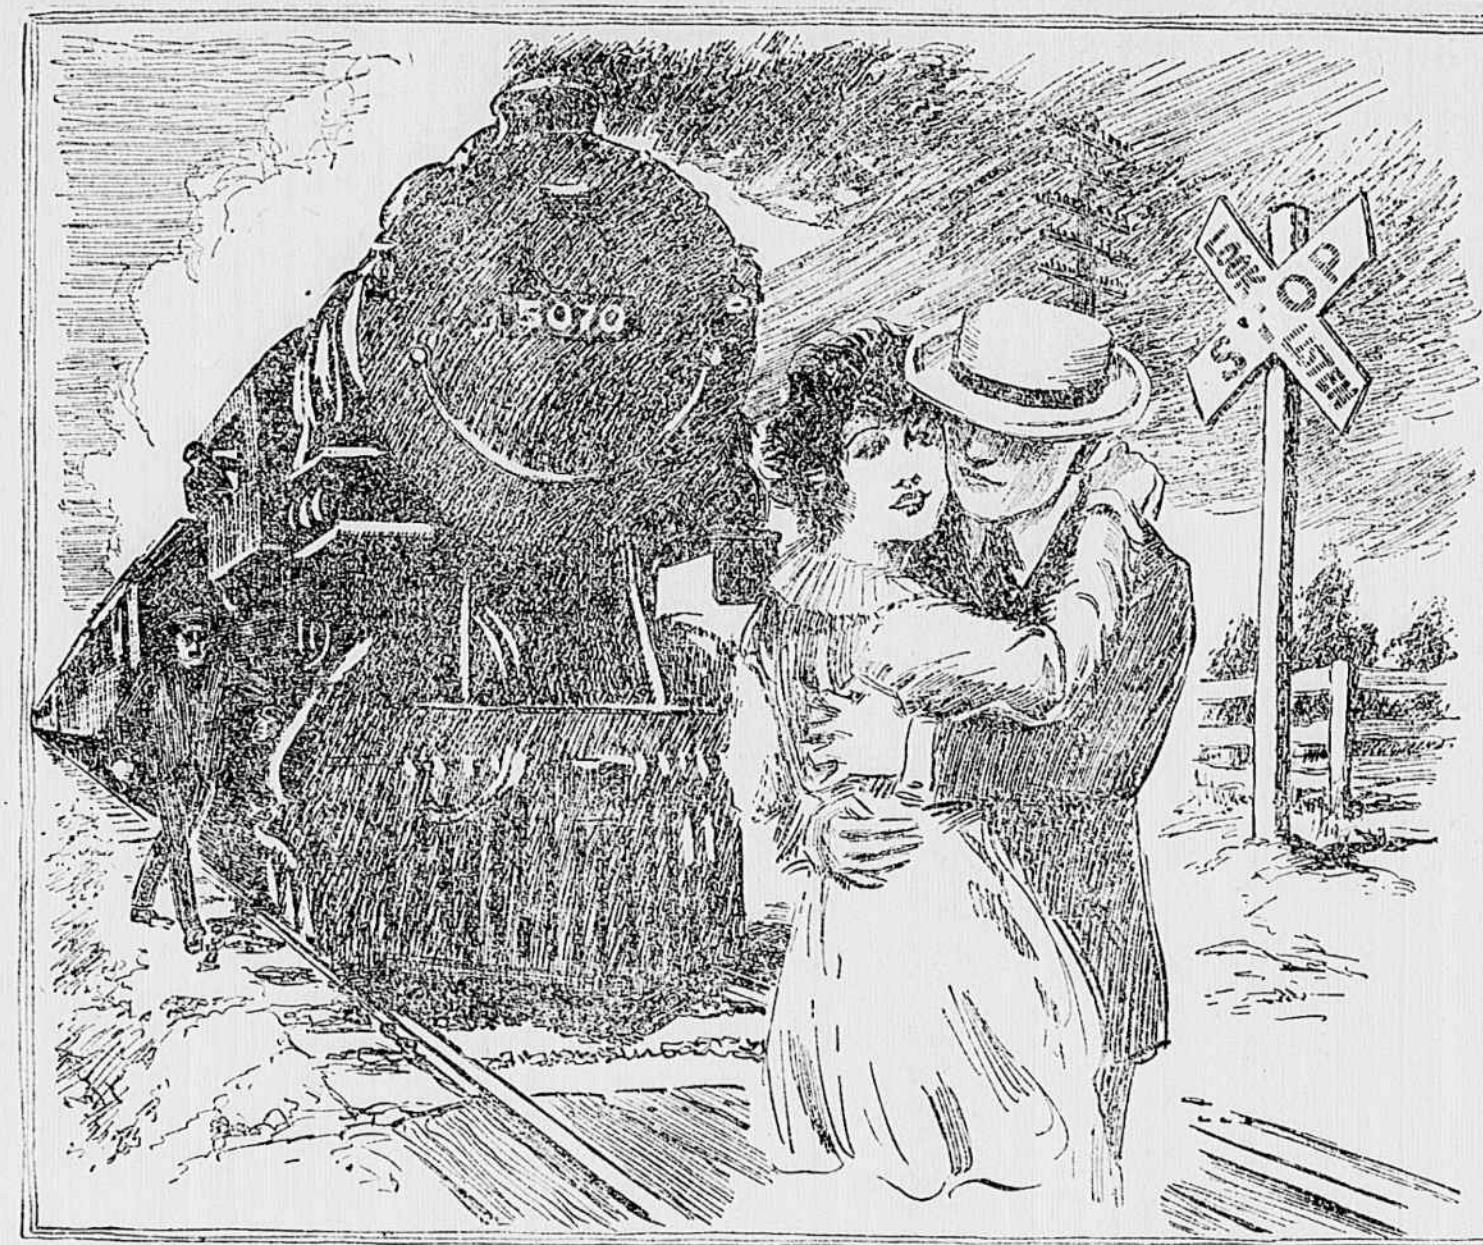

I used to think it would be fine if I could own a diamond mine—I used to think I'd like to run the mint, use the tools, have a bank account, take me underground with my wife, and give me many a timely market hint. And once I was so good at it that I grew so fond of it that I began to do a thing to do the living day and have worked for many moons to make myself grow fat and fatigued, bringing wealth over the Maydays. Then I was banded to devise a plan to make a fortune, and I hoped to save up a sum for the old age, but now I've found a better means, and so I don't mind leaving my old plans for the new. I have found a diamond mine, and it's a diamond mine, and it's near! Please take my advice, and don't let me insist on garden-sises. Because they like to eat their shadows, and one day they will not pass away. So I have turned to honest toil, nor ask a gushful of oil to oil, nor a diamond mine. I would not shrink with fear, for the mine, two-twenty-five, ah, no! I do not want to own the mint!

AMUSEMENTS

Musical Comedy at Lyric

The brilliant musical comedy "Little Johnny Wiser" with a cast of comedians, singers, dancers, and specialty artists, headed by Eddie Ray, will be the opening feature of the new show which comes to the Lyric today for the week-end. "Little Johnny Wiser" is a riotous fun frolic. Amusingly dressed, the girls are a bevy of pretty and shapely show girls, who appear in a series of sketches and ballets. The musical specialties are numerous and ingeniously costumed. The musical comedy is equipped with the same elaborate sets and machinery given to a three-act musical comedy production of the first class.

On the same bill will be a varied array of vaudeville acts, and Lynch and Zeller, exemplars of the newest ideas in club juggling will be seen in their spectacular exhibition. Angel and Fuller will present an uproariously funny variety sketch. They are singers, dancers, and up-to-the-minute comedians. Wally Taylor and Hicks, a trio of musical comedians have a rollicking singing act, and rounding out the diversified bill will be the Maydays, a troupe of entertainers, who display remarkable versatility in their unusual offering.

New movies' supplement the vaudeville bill as usual.

A Gay Summer Show.
Don't you more than the common stories of gaiety seen in a "summer show" in the little "All Aboard for Cuba," the production at the Strand Theater this week by the Jimmie Hodges Musical Comedy Stock Com-

pane. "All Aboard for Cuba" is lavishly produced, much expense having been entailed in the sets and costuming for this jolly spectacle and the Spanish spirit of abandon is well maintained. The popular Dixie chorus, "Spinning Chair" runs through the two acts and six scenes in the ludicrous George Twyman,
